Legislators Draft New Road District Refunding Measure

Bill to Prohibit Gasoline Stations From Showing State Tax Killed

AUDITOR REPORTS

Member of Audit Commission Reads Roads Report Tuesday

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—The House of Representatives, killed by indefinite postponement bill to prohibit gasoline stations from showing the amount of state tax.

The Senate adopted a concurrent resolution for appointment of five senators and seven representatives to draft a new road district refunding bill.

House Works on Bonds

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—The House refused to send the road district bond refunding question to a conference of the house and senate and decided to continue consideration of the refunding measures before it at this time.

This action came after an hours debate, following a joint session of the senate and house at which S. M. Casey, member of the State Highway Audit Commission read a report on the highway department investigation, containing little not already disclosed at the commission public hearings.

Discussing the cost plus contracts awarded the Hogan and Constant Construction companies, Casey declared that there were approximately three million dollars worth of cost plus contracts awarded on non-competitive basis.

Indian Convicted of Slaying Co-Ed

Jury Fixes Punishment at Life; Prosecutor Sought Death Penalty

GLOBE, Ark.—(P)—A federal court jury decided Monday night that Mac (Golney) Seymour, Apache Indian rider, shall be imprisoned for life for the murder of Henrietta Schmeier, Columbia University co-ed.

The government, Seymour's legal guardian had demanded death penalty. Miss Schmeier, a research student, was slain July 18 on the White River reservation where she had lived alone.

Five possible verdicts were listed in Judge Albert M. Sames' instruction to the jurors. They included:

Guilty of murder in the first degree, punishable by death or life imprisonment, the jury's recommendation to be mandatory in either case; guilty of murder in the second degree, guilty of manslaughter and acquittal.

In closing arguments the prosecutor demanded the jury "apply the same standard to the Indian as to a white man—measure him with the same yardstick."

The accused Apache's attorney meanwhile begged the jury to "give this poor savage the same break you would a white man."

Miss Schmeier's body was found July 24 on the White River Indian reservation, a few weeks after she had come there from Columbia University, New York, to study the life of the Apache.

"I hope," defense attorney said to the jury, "you are not fooled to believing all women sent to Indian reservations by a great university are angels—I hope you gentlemen are not so bamboozled by college students as to believe they never take a drink. She was out on a lark."

"But give her the benefit of doubt—say she did everything proper. She was a canary released from a cage, seeking refuge in the paws of a domestic cat—would you kill the cat, because it could not resist natural instincts?"

Hope Gets Arkansas' Goat; 'Al Buttinski' To Be Guest of City

Hope got Arkansas' goat Monday. No fooling—it's a serious matter. This is a real live goat. It arrived here Monday as the unwanted present of the Arkansas Department of the American Legion for Barney Hamm, district commander.

Al Buttinski is his name, and he is black, and he smells.

Al came in in a crate at the express office, and Barney hopes soon he will go away in the same manner.

You see, the Arkansas Legion department resolved some time ago to purchase a goat and ship him around the state, to whichever district commander was furthest behind in the membership campaign. Barney kept away from the goat a long time—but this week it caught up with him.

After this week the goat goes to the city or town ranking lowest in this district. Just at present it looks like Horatio is going to get Hope's goat, and Barney doesn't care if it does.

'Stunt Night' to Be Held at High School

Many Interesting Features to Be Included in the Program

O. O. McIntyre, humorist of world as well as national fame, has never before had the role he will assume here Friday night, and it is probable that he will never have it again. Few people have seen the famous essayist in a Parisian shop in company with his wife, who has a passion for Parisian styles. Here he has many thrilling adventures and his ability to speak French is thoroughly tested.

O. O. McIntyre is only one of the famous celebrities to be presented at stunt night, March 25, at the high school auditorium.

The program will be in charge of the school, and will include stunts presented by school clubs and civic organizations. Admission will be fifteen and twenty-five cents.

Christian Revival Now in Progress

Rev. B. B. Blalock, of Arkadelphia, in Charge of Services This Week

The revival at the First Christian church started with enthusiastic services Sunday morning; the church was well filled at the morning hour and was crowded for the evening service.

The service Monday night was well attended despite the blustery weather. Evangelist, Rev. Bryan B. Blalock, of Arkadelphia, brought a forceful message from the topic, "The High Cost of Low Living."

Mr. Padgett is leading a large choir of hope singers. Old-fashioned gospel songs and messages feature all services during the revival.

The message Tuesday night will be from the topic, "Give God a Chance." We are expecting the church to be crowded to its capacity for this hour of worship. The people of all churches in Hope will find a cheerful welcome awaiting them at all these meetings during the revival.

This campaign will continue throughout the week-day evenings except Saturday and close with three great services Sunday. Bring your unsaved friends and loved ones to these services and it will do us all a real good. Remember the worship begins promptly at 7:30 each evening; Come and enjoy these happy hours with us.

Bank Robbers Get $6,000 At Cabot Monday Afternoon

Trio Escapes From Posse After Changing Cars Near Vilona

LOCK 3 IN VAULT

Cars Used in Robbery Stolen From Persons in Community

CABOT—Robbers who held up the Bank of Cabot at 1:05 Monday afternoon and secured about $6,000, escaped from posesses at Vilona after they had changed automobiles and outran members of the posesses before they were recognized.

The robbers were in a green Chevrolet coupe stolen from Charles Miller at Lonoke Sunday night when they held up the bank, but had a Ford sedan parked in the woods in Cypress bottoms, near here, while they changed after the robbery. The Chevrolet was recovered north of Ward, where it had been abandoned.

Stops All Cars

Officers at Beebe stopped all cars after the robbery, but missed the men who held up the bank because of the change in cars. Lewis Holt, barber who has a shop in the bank building, saw the men follow Mrs. Jewell Leggett, bookkeeper into the bank and spoke to them after the robbery.

Mrs. Leggett, Mrs. J. E. Henderson and Jim Benson of Austin, customers, were locked in the vault of the bank after the robbers had taken all the cash they could find. Two men entered the bank and one remained in the coupe in front of the building. The prisoners were released five minutes after the robbery by Fred Gartlington cashier.

Herbert Anderson of Cabot said he saw the roadster parked in the woods near Cabot only in the morning and Sheriff R. O. Benton of Lonoke found where the robbers had spent the night in the woods.

Holt said he saw the two robbers who entered the bank come out a few minutes later and one put a package into his overcoat pocket. The two that went into the bank wore overalls, with suits underneath, he said. The driver of the car did not wear overalls.

Holt said the motor of the Chevrolet died while the men were in the bank and after they came out and got into the car they stopped long enough to light cigarettes before starting the car again.

Mrs. Leggett was forced to lie on the floor while the robbers secured the money and Mrs. Henderson and Benson came into the bank during the hold up and also were forced to lie on the floor.

Conditions Affect School Standards

But Association Lenient in Dealing With Arkansas Institutions

LITTLE ROCK—Officials from the state Department of Education, who returned Monday from the annual meeting of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, said that the chief difficulty Arkansas schools had in maintaining their standards and accredited relationship with the association this year was financial. However, recognizing the unusual circumstances of this past year, association officials were lenient, it was said.

Seventy-one Arkansas high schools held membership in the association in 1931. At the meeting last week two Arkansas high schools were dropped because of inability to meet the association standards and one voluntarily withdrew for the same reason. Two new high schools were added: Fairview of Camden, and Beebe Junior Agricultural College High School Department, Beebe.

Arkansas schools accredited by the association are:

Arkadelphia, Ashdown, Augusta Batesville, Beebe Junior Agricultural College High School Department, Benton, Blytheville, Booneville, Brinkley, Camden, Fairview (Camden), Carendon, Arkansas State Teachers College training department (Conway), Central College Preparatory (Conway), Conway Crawfordville, Crossett, De Witt, Earle, El Dorado, England, Eudora, Fayetteville, University training school (Fayetteville), Fordyce, Forrest City, Fort Smith, Gurdon, Helena, Hope, Hot Springs, Hulbert, Jonesboro, Jonesboro A. & M. training department, Lake Village, Lewisville, Little Rock, Dunbar (negro) High School (Little Rock), Mount St. Mary's (Little Rock), Lonoke, Magnolia, Magnolia A. & M. training school, Malvern, Marianna, Marion, Mea, Monticello, Monticello A. & M. training school, Newport, North Little Rock, Osceola, Paragould, Paris, Parkin, Pine Bluff, Portland, Prescott, Recto, Searcy, Siloam Springs, Smackover, Stamps, Stuttgart, Texarkana, Turrell, Van Buren, Walnut Ridge, Warren, Wilson, Wynne.

$90,700 Penalty for Shipping Live Quail

HOLLY SPRINGS, Miss.—(P)—Magistrate Tom C. Wynne Jr., Thursday the Railway Express Agency $90,700 because 907 live quail were found in cages on the railroad platform consigned to points outside the state. The magistrate held it was a violation of the state law.

F. H. White, local agent for the express company presented no defense and Magistrate Wynne assessed the maximum fine of $100 for every bird shipped.

The birds were shipped from Magee to Washington and points in Alabama and Carolina and were only unloaded at Holly Springs to be transferred from one railroad to another. ## Bulk of Extension Funds to Counties

Arkansas First in This Respect Among 20 States Surveyed

LITTLE ROCK—Arkansas is first among 20 states for which figures are available in the relative amount of funds devoted to farm and home demonstration work, it was announced Monday by T. Roy Reid, assistant director in charge of state Agricultural Extension Service.

According to information compiled by the Extension Service of the United States Department of Agriculture, $2.62 per cent of the total funds for extension work in Arkansas is devoted to county farm and home demonstration agent work, 9.78 per cent to the maintenance of specialists, and 7.62 per cent to administration, Mr. Reid said.

"In other words, the Extension Service in Arkansas is putting more than four-fifths of its entire appropriation to work out in the counties as county agents and home demonstration agents to serve the state's farm people, rather than to attempt such a service through fewer county workers and a larger number of specialists," Mr. Reid said.

"The total amount used in specialists' projects in Arkansas is 35 per cent less than the maximum percentage recommended by the federal department, and the total sum for administration of the work is considerably less than the average of the 20 states studied."

A neighboring state employ 58.16 per cent of its entire funds for county agent work, 10.75 per cent for home demonstration agent work, 23.67 per cent specialists and 9.42 per cent to administration.

A North Central state with a large appropriation for extension work devotes 48.81 per cent to county agent work, 4.21 per cent to home demonstration agent work, 26.16 per cent to specialists and 20.82 per cent to administration.

A Southern state with a large appropriation employ 44.99 per cent of its total appropriation for county agent work, 26.93 per cent for home demonstration agent work, 20.42 per cent for specialists and 7.66 per cent to administration.

The averages for the 20 states studied are: 51.75 per cent for the total appropriations devoted to county agent work, 22.21 per cent to home demonstration agent work, 16.645 to specialists and 9.51 per cent to administration.

Farm Board Held Menace to Co-Ops

Unwise Use of Power Crushing Movement, Senate Committee Told

WASHINGTON.—(P)—Big salaries paid by Farm Board subsidiaries were defended Monday by C. E. Huff, president of the Farmer's National Grain Corporation, with an assertion that results counted more than cost of operation.

With Dameron H. Williams of Gastonia, N. C., who said the board was wrecking the co-operative movement, Huff appeared before the Senate Agriculture Subcommittee in hearings on the Farm Board bill to reduce the salaries of Farm Board members from $12,000 to $5,000 and limit salaries paid by borrowing and affiliated organizations to $15,000.

Huff's defense included the $50,000 salary of George S. Milnor, general manager of his organization, which has been subjected to bitter criticism in and out of congress.

He said only seven men would be affected by the Borah bill, and that "the mishandling of a single day's business would cost as much as their combine salaries for the 12 months."

Williams contended that the board "by unwise use of its power, is literally crushing the co-operative movement."

"I can not see that the activities of the board with respect to co-operative marketing can have any other result than to wreck completely the co-operative movement."

He said the American Cotton Co-operative Association "is hopelessly in debt" to the board and that farmers who sold to it in 1930 received $10,000, 000 less than if they had sold in the outside markets.

Williams, a director of the American Cotton Shippers Association, contended the co-operatives were handicapped "by an excessive and unwarranted salary overhead" and charged that the Farm Board and affiliates maintained "a complete propaganda machine" to discredit private traders.

Dry Chief Scored By U. S. Attorney

Evidence in Raids on New Orleans Night Clubs Refused

NEW ORLEANS.—(P)—Evidence intended by the federal prohibition department for civil padlock against three palatial night clubs at New Orleans, while Edmund M. Talbot, United States district attorney, refused to admit and approved Administrator R. E. Tuttle of the prohibition department for the methods used by his squad Saturday night in gathering names and bottles in the clubs.

Seventy-five names were obtained, some of them fashionable night club patrons of the city, and bottles of liquor were seized by well-dressed agents who sat at the tables. As corks popped an officer patron would quietly show his badge, seize the bottle and take the names of those in the party.

In the Club Forest the manager of the restaurant informed a table of prohibition agents that they would not be permitted to leave their bottles of liquor on the table and he agents were forced to tuck the goods away in their pocket.

Monday when Tuttle presented to United States Commissioner Reginald H. Carter Jr., names of the 75 persons under technical arrest, his agent was informed by Talbot that the charges would not be accepted because no commercial violation of the prohibition law had been shown.

"It is against the policy of Judge Borah (federal district judge) and of this office to make arrests in any save commercial cases," Talbot said in a statement.

He accused the prohibition department of making "a very big error in not conferring with the district attorney's office," but said that if evidence to warrant padlock proceedings as requested by the prohibition department, his own he would take the necessary steps.

Tuttle replied that he believed he had carried out his duty according to the law in leading the raids on clubs and patrons and said he would turn over the report to the district attorney's office.

Tuttle charged that the night clubs against his advice had continued to serve "hot spots" for liquor drinking at the tables and said that because the department forbids drinking by prohibition workers, the officers were compelled to adopt the method employed "in order to secure evidence."

The district attorney, in defense of his stand, declared that National Prohibition Director Woodcock "wants the distributors and not the consumers arrested."

"He is not after the fellow with a pint or a quart having a good time," said Talbot.

While officialdom was thus ensnared a score or more of well known social night clubbers romped the outside corridors recounting their experiences with the raiders and at the end breathing easier that their names would not be seen in print.

Club Forest, Suburban Gardens and Playgrounds Club were the gay palaces invaded.

Levine Indicted On Three Counts

All Involve Disappearance of 100 Shares of A. T. & T. Stock

NEW YORK.—(P)—Charles A. Levine's succession of scrapes, which followed his flight to Germany as Clarence Chamberlain's backer and passenger in 1927, grew longer Monday with his indictment for forgery, grand larceny and criminally receiving stolen property.

Two indictments were returned against him. One of them charged his complicity in disappearance of 100 shares of American Telephone and Telegraph stock which were started from the A. T. & T. headquarters for a brokerage office March 24, 1930, but never arrived there. The stock later was offered by Levine as collateral for a loan, it was alleged.

The second indictment charged that he had forged necessary endorsements on the stock.

Levine dropped out of sight more than a year ago when he was sought in connection with the missing stock. Last month an anonymous telephone call led detectives to a h-s-p-l, where he was found, registered under an alias, suffering from a broken leg.

He was placed under arrest, and a police guard was posted at his door a several days. The guard was removed when he was admitted to $10,000 bail.

Levine's troubles began immediately after the famous flight. He became involved in so many difficulties abroad that Dudley Field Malone, in empanelling lawyer, suggested that a battenship be sent over to bring him home "before we are drawn into another war."

Star's Platform
The Star's platform is to develop the economic resources of the State, to improve the material conditions of the people, and to promote the welfare of the community.

Disadvantages of the Dole
We have been told plenty of times, during the past few months, that the dole is demoralizing. Nobody ever thought, until the Welfare Council of New York City the other day released a report studying the effect of unemployment on the "new poor."

From reports of some 900 social workers and public health nurses, the Welfare Council was able to get a pretty accurate picture of what happens in a hitherto self-supporting, self-reliant family when it is forced to live on charity.

Most of them, says the survey, "really wanted work. When they got it without too long a wait, they were happy. They could get along without further assistance, and there was usually no evidence of the development of a dependent attitude."

When employment was long delayed, those who at first were uncomfortable at the necessity for seeking assistance, and grateful for whatever was given, became demanding and grasping. After the initial embarrassment of a first recourse to charity is overcome, it is easy to ask a second time, to drop efforts to find work, accept a position of dependence, rely on the agency and criticize its methods.

The survey explains, too, that many unemployed workers became so mentally and physically fatigued by the constant discouragement of unsuccessful search for employment that they were as open to the mental infection of dependency, as they were to various physical infections.

This amply buttresses all the bad things that we have been hearing about the dole. Yet it is worth noticing that the people studied in this report were the recipients of local charity. Their money was coming from their immediate fellow-citizens and not from Uncle Sam.

One kind of dole, evidently, is just as bad as another kind. It is tragic that people have to ask for help; inevitable, when they do, that some of them will lose their self-reliance and their energy.

Diplomacy
THE rules by which the game of international diplomacy is conducted must, now and then, seem exceedingly silly—to anyone but a diplomat.

Japan recently established a new nation in Manchuria and put in Henry Pu-Yi as its nominal boss. The United States doesn't approve.

So, the other day, the new Manchurian state appealed to the United States government for recognition. Officials at Washington refused to acknowledge even that the appeal had been received. They won't let the appeal be published. To do so would give it some sort of official standing.

Furthermore, to quote a Washington dispatch, "if the new state had sent an official representative to the State Department, of course, he would not have been received, as the United States is officially ignorant of the Changchun adventure."

Diplomacy is a nice game, but it does lead to some funny situations.

Presidential Referendums
SENATOR LaFollette of Wisconsin is trying to get early action on legislation which would provide for a nationwide advisory referendum vote on candidates for presidential nominations. The vote would be held in advance of the two national conventions, and would be supposed to guide the delegates in their deliberations.

There isn't much chance that such a law will pass, to be sure; but it does contain a lot of good, sound common sense. A nationwide direct primary at which every man would cast his ballot, in his own party, for the candidate he preferred, would prevent these hotel room deals that feature so many conventions, and would give the voters a much more direct chance of expressing themselves. It would, in a word, be infinitely more democratic than our present system. Isn't the idea worth considering?

Trying to Cover Up
WHEN the legislature forbids the posting of the amount of the Arkansas gasoline tax it shows that that body is beginning to realize the rank injustice of the levy. There's no escape for those who imposed the 6-cent tax. They were out to soak the poor people. They soaked 'em. And the people, so far as they could, crossed the state line for gas and curtailed consumption as much as possible. The law of diminishing returns began to work.

Every state with a lesser gas tax urges the Arkansas board motorist to load up before entering the state. Signs inside Arkansas or lack of them have very little bearing and the barring of the posting of the state tax is a transparent subterfuge that does the state no credit. "Spectator" in Texas.

The dime-a-dance girl

BY JOAN CREWTON

BEGIN HERE TODAY
ELLEN ROSSITER, beautiful 20-year-old, loves LARRY STARROWGATE, young artist. When he becomes engaged to another girl, Ellen agrees to marry STEVEN BARCLAY, 27 years old and wealthy. Her impoverished family is indebted to Barclay. Barclay has been married before. A scandal accompanied his Mexican divorce from LENA GRAYSON, dancer. To avoid a society Ellen and Barclay are secretly married. They move to his home, where, except for FRIGUS, a butler, there is no one. Barclay suffers a heart attack. LARRY STARROWGATE, a lawyer, arrives with doctors and nurses. Barclay dies at once. Sympies tells Ellen her marriage is not legal because papers involving Barclay's divorce from Lena Grayson have been stolen. Ellen tries to work out Barclay's lawyer to avoid scandal. She believes she must keep her marriage secret to protect Barclay's honor and her own. She learns Larry Starrowgate is Barclay's nephew. Her brother, FRIGUS, she goes to Sympies' office and tells him she is going back to work at Barclay's dance hall. She also tells him that she is in love with Larry Starrowgate, called that Larry's engagement has been broken. Sympies advises her not to tell Larry of the marriage to Barclay.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XLII
"Of course I'd want to tell him about Steven," Ellen went on. "though if I thought telling him would destroy his faith in me or destroy any happiness we might otherwise build up together, I wouldn't tell." "My child, you've grown up," Sympies told her a little sadly. The next day, Sunday, ushered in the first of the autumn rains. All day long the rain came down. Late in the afternoon Myra and Bert, bundled into slickers and galoshes, called at the old apartment. They carried damp, heavy strands of Sunday newspapers. There was nothing about Steven Barclay in the news columns but in one of the society sections Ellen found a picture of Larry, an old picture badly reproduced. Seeing it, she was seized with sharp longing for him, to hear his gay voice and careless laugh. When no one was observing her Ellen tore out the picture. "Ha!" Myra exclaimed significantly. Ellen whirled. Her color deepened and she had an impulse to hide the picture but she did not. She only stood flushing furiously, the picture pressed against her heart. "I was wondering if you'd do that," Myra observed, a wise smile on her lips. "I saw the picture, too."

"Why shouldn't I?" Ellen demanded in a trembling, half-despairing way. "No reason at all, my dear. Here's wishing you all the luck in the world!" It doesn't really seem right for me to be thinking of Larry, does it?" Ellen asked timidly. "Goodness!" Myra ejaculated. The following night Ellen returned to Dreamland and danced again. Salomon rejoiced at the chance to regain her services. None of the other hostesses was inquisitive about what she had been doing—none, that is, except Tony. Tony was difficult with her teasing, parasitic questions but Ellen only told her that she had changed her mind about being married. After a matter of time, Ellen found the evening long. A light and feverish restlessness seized her when she heard the familiar voices, saw the familiar setting and familiar faces. As for me to be thinking of Larry, does it?" Ellen asked timidly. "Goodness!" Myra ejaculated. Tickets, as she sat smiling across the table, seeming to listen to her partner's conversation, she was thinking that at any moment Larry might come, swinging through the door. But he did not come. She had been foolish to think he would come, foolish to believe he would have a way of knowing she was there. Tuesday and Wednesday and Thursday increased her feverish longing. She questioned Tony about the last time he had been there. Friday morning she read in the society columns that Larry Starrowgate was to sail for Europe with his mother in four days. Four days! The world went black. He would be gone so soon and she had no way to hold him. A dozen times that day she started toward the telephone to call him; a dozen times she restrained herself. The hours dragged by Ellen thought that she would die of sheer heartache. Molly noticed she was drooping and tried to dose her with a favored tonic but Ellen refused to be dosed.

SICK with misery she went again to Dreamland Friday night. No hope of Larry tonight. If he were sailing it meant no hope at all. She was restless, impatient and annoyed with her partners, unable to keep her eyes from straying over their shoulders to the door. On why didn't Larry come! At half past 10 she saw him. Ellen was not dancing and did not see him coming up the stairs. She caught sight of him when he stopped at the ticket booth. His back was toward her. The girl did not move but sat very still as one in the presence of a miracle. In her heart was a sense of exquisite peace. He turned. She started from her chair, a greeting on her lips. She saw him pause, sweep the room with eager eyes. Their glances met. For a moment the trembling, confused, almost deliriously excited girl did not understand. It seemed to her that Larry flushed, and then the warmth left her and she went icy cold. For Larry's gaze moved past her. Without a sign of recognition he strolled to Tony's table. She heard him laugh as he asked Tony to dance with him. For a long time Ellen remained seated. The room buzzed with voices. Even the clatter of traffic and the faint, faraway noises of the street seemed only to accentuate the gaiety of the dance floor. They were happy, the little dancing girls in their flimsy frocks, eager and expectant, excited as they laughed up into the eyes of their partners. Ellen knew that mood. She remembered when she too had been so jubilant. "It's all finished," she thought impersonally, almost as if she were thinking of another girl. "It's all finished between Larry

Mr. Ed Henry Telephone 322

There really isn't so much that's bad. There's a lot of good in the old world yet. There are people still trying to make the best of it. There are hearts still beating that don't forget. There's far more good than we really think. And the quiet good that we know not of. All the old world's better because it lives a little bit nearer the heart of love. A little bit nearer the heart of love. Of the really bad, if you only see. How much more people would rather be good. Then anything else they've tried to be.—Selected.

VAN BUREN.—Daisy Lee May Rawlins, 18-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Rawlins of Van Buren, died at the home Sunday from burns suffered Friday when she fell into a tub of boiling water in the kitchen of the home. Mrs. Rawlins had been using the water to scald a chicken and turned away from the tub for a short time and the child fell into it. The little girl was burned over the body and legs. ## Royal Reconciliation Between Prince, Father

NICE, France.—A royal reconciliation occurred Sunday when Prince Lennart of Sweden and his bride arrived on their honeymoon and visited the prince's father and grandfather.

The couple, who married despite the formal objections of the Swedish royal family, had luncheon with Lennart's father, Prince William, at a quiet restaurant on the Seafont.

Later they drove by automobile to visit King Gustav at his hotel. Their visit to the king coincided with promulgation of the Swedish cabinet at Stockholm of a decree depriving Lennart of his title and prerogatives.

The prince said he probably would take the German title of "Count of Malmu." The couple will go to the island of Malmu in Lake Constance to live on the prince's estate.

Latest "Ride" Victims Identified by Police

CHICAGO.—Police Sunday identified Chicago's latest victim of the "one way ride" as Frank Battaglia, leader of the notorious "42" gang. His body was found earlier in the day with three bullets through the back and head, on a frozen pond southwest of the city.

Battaglia had been charged with murder and most of the lesser crimes in the statutes. He had been shot several times in previous underworld disputes. According to police he had been a "marked man" for months, apparently because of some illicit liquor dispute.

The highway commission reported to the national technical society for testing materials that no difference could be found in the paved sections.
